Get Out Uncle Fred's Secret Chili Recipe!

Join us for our 8th Annual Chilipalooza on the Village Green. This awesome night of music and chili is sponsored by Music on the Green and all funds raised go to Terrace Park Volunteer Emergency Services. Even though it hasn't even really hinted at fall, we have all faith that October 12 will be perfect chili eating weather! Again this year we have special guests The Ukulele Brothers. If you've caught them at the Winter Club, Little Miami Brewing or Madeira Depot, you know what a fun time they are! If you haven't seen them, don't miss these guys with a set list including Gin n Juice, Hungry like a Wolf and Folsom Prison Blues played ukulele style! If that weren't enough, our own EMS Chief John Maggard will be playing bass. AND if that weren't enough, there will be CHILI!

We need YOU to make chili! Why not 'wow' us all with a batch of chili from your house, your street, your team, or even Uncle Fred's recipe? The prizes are great and the bragging rights are even better.

Creative names and displays only make the chili more tasty! Not a cooker, but an eater? $10 gets you a bottomless bowl of chili (and hot dogs!) and the chance to vote for your favorites.

If you are thinking about making chili:

Name your Chili (cute names = extra points)

Email hestersullivan@me.com with your entry's name (and your name!)

Make a batch, put it in a crock pot and bring it to the Green October 12th at 5:30. (cute display = extra points)

Chili judging and tasting from 5:45 - 7:30.

Prizes and bragging rights awarded at 8.

Music by the Ukulele Brothers 6 - 9 p.m. .

All proceeds benefit our Terrace Park all-Volunteer Fire and EMS Departments.

Stickers, Koozies & shaky eggs FREE as added incentives!

Happy Campers - Camp Kern 2019

The TP sixth graders are ready to head off to a fun-filled week at Camp Kern. This annual tradition has been going on for decades and is a highlight of the last year at Terrace Park Elementary. The week of teambuilding, exploration and fun gives them a chance to get to know the students at Mariemont Elementary before they start junior high together next Fall. With MHS seniors as counselors, memories are made that last a lifetime!

Dear Neighbors,

There are two ways to tell that October is coming in Terrace Park: Either look for the golden leaves on the old trees or look for the Facebook posts from parents showing ridiculous homecoming proposals. Either way you'll know that fall is here. A glimpse at the village calendar this month will show you that from Homecoming to Halloween, autumn is a great time to be in Terrace Park. The bike racks at the school are full, there are pumpkins on the porch, and we are all back from summer travels and ready to come together as neighbors to celebrate fall and enjoy our favorite TP holiday- Halloween! This month will also bring the obligatory TPList posts asking if we can move Halloween to a weekend. Like the life cycle of the trees in the village, this is the cycle of life in Terrace Park and we love it. According to the police report we are all getting along and behaving well so keep up the good work, Terrace Park. Join me at the Miami Grove for the history walk on the 12th and I'll see you at the Green after for great chili and bluegrass. Not sure what I'm talking about? Read this issue- it's all inside! Until next month I remain,

Your Editor,
Steve Early

Scary Stories To Tell in The Park

October in Terrace Park means Homecoming, gorgeous fall leaves, and of course our favorite holiday, Halloween! With the season of ghosts and goblins almost here, the Village Views is taking a look at some of the spooky tales from our area that still haunt our imaginations today...

Last year this paper asked residents for their own ghost stories from the neighborhood and we got a whopping zero responses. As a realtor I should be happy that nobody reports a spectre among their home's features but that doesn't mean Terrace Park is without its fair share of legends. Just ask around at a cocktail party and you'll hear about homes with rumors of ghostly footsteps on the stairs in the night, homes with windows that won't stay shut, even a contractor quitting on the spot while working in an old Terrace Park home after he saw something in an upstairs closet that he refused to even describe. (And no, it wasn't just unwashed lacrosse gear.) But perhaps the spookiest tale of all comes from a Cincinnati Times-Star article from 1933.

- Scary cont. from Page 1

In the days before the Civil War there wasn't much in modern day Terrace Park but just next door, between Terrace Park and Milford, around the area of Pioneer Fence, was a busy little community called Montauk, with hotels, saloons, homes and shops. An 1840's brick Baptist church building is about all that's left today but when the Little Miami was used for commercial transport, Montauk was thriving. According to legend, in one of the old taverns along the river there, the innkeeper would climb a tree next to the building and look into the window of a new guest. If he thought they had anything worth taking, he'd creep into their room and murder them in the night, burying them on the banks of the Little Miami River where their ghostly corpse lights still float along the water.

Another legend comes from up the road in Miamiville, just above Camp Denison. During the Civil War, Confederate John Hunt Morgan led a band of marauders on raids through this area. While trying to burn the railroad bridge opposite the Indian Hill Winter Club, they killed a railroad worker on the tracks. His ghost is said to still appear on dark nights, swinging his lantern on the bike trail, warning passersby of the fog.

The oldest legend though, dates all the way back to the 1790s, when Covalt Station was the only building in Terrace Park, a guarded log fort where the inhabitants were regularly killed by Shawnee and Miami Indians who claimed these lands as winter hunting grounds. One day James Newell, the school teacher at Columbia, Cincinnati's oldest settlement near present day Lunken Airport, was making his way toward present day Terrace Park to use the grist mill on the Little Miami when he was shot and killed by Indians somewhere in the creek below the modern day Mariemont Pool. Afterward people began to see what they claimed was his glowing apparition stalking along the path. Perhaps the most credible sighting came in the 1830s from prominent citizens John and Tabitha Armstrong, who lived in the old white brick house on Wooster Pike that is now 50 West. According to the Armstrongs, they were making their way along the old trail through that creek at night when they both claimed to see Newell's ghost, still carrying the grain on his back, and making his way toward Terrace Park in the moonlight. For decades this spooky area was known on old maps as Newell's Hollow.

But the most unusual supernatural Terrace Park tale isn't about a haunted location at all, in fact, it came from the sky... On Monday morning, July 7, 1947, the Cincinnati Enquirer ran a bold headline that proclaimed "Flying Saucers Over Cincinnati". In the accompanying article, a Terrace Park housewife at 908 Elm Avenue claims to have been coming down the stairs around 6pm when she looked out a window on the landing facing west over the nature preserve. There in the sky she saw two discs moving rapidly through the sky. It was the sun gleaming on their shiny, reflective surface that caught her eye. Army aircraft investigated but the unidentified flying objects could not be located and radar at Lunken airport detected nothing. It was as if they had simply vanished over Terrace Park... or perhaps landed!

Like any historic, old village worth its salt, Terrace Park has tales and legends both romantic and tragic, heroic and terrifying, accurate and exaggerated. It's part of our local color and the fabric of our village. Better keep your eyes and ears open this Halloween for mysterious lights along the river, heavy footsteps on the stairs, and little green men in the nature preserve!

Police Report

While the members of the Terrace Park police force are busy every day of the month, the Village Views police report limits itself to reporting incidents that affect the public safety of the community. So, while our officers were enforcing laws or helping those in distress or settling neighbor disputes the entire month of August, there are no issues to report that affect the public safety. Good job, you cool TP neighborhood!

Garden Club Offers Autumn Advice

Submitted by Christy Hawkins

Tuesday, October 1st Meeting - "Trees and Shrubs: Caring for and Pruning"

The Terrace Park Garden Club (TPGC)'s October 1st meeting in the Community Center will include a presentation by Chris McKeown from Denny McKeown's Bloomin' Garden Centre and Landscape in Blue Ash.

Plants and flowers may get all the attention, but don't forget about trees and shrubs - they need care too. Chris will share insights on how to care for and prune trees and shrubs. The presentation is open to the community from 1:00 -2:00 PM and snacks will be served.

Tips on "How to Put Your Garden to Bed for Winter"

TPGC member and horticulture expert, Barb Bird gave an informational talk at our last meeting on how to clean up your perennial garden in the Fall to prepare for Winter.

What to Clean Up/Do:

- Cut back overly aggressive perennials that will give you too many small plants
- Remove leaves with powdery mildew or other foliage disease
- Trim only long rose canes that could get damaged in the wind
- Apply a light mulch layer (and keep it away from the plant's crown) after plants have gone dormant - let a few freezes occur
- For hardier plants, mulch the crown with pine straw or straw to help protect them from freeze-thaw action
- Water during dry spells once a month when temps are over 40 degrees and as early in the day as

The Garden Club's Barb Bird presented tips on fall gardening at last month's meeting.

- possible
- What to Leave Alone:
- Dried foliage and leaves in your bed contain insects that help your plants grow
  - Dead stems help mark the plant to avoid accidentally digging it up, or stepping on it
  - Some plants may still drop seeds to generate new plants
  - Some plants prefer Spring pruning, such as: aster, black-eyed susan, daisy, foxglove, hosta, joe pye weed, lavender, munstead, mugwort, and sage to name a few
  - Early blooming shrubs

have already set their buds for next Spring, and if you prune them now, you risk losing their flowers

- Seed heads and stalks provide food for insects and butterflies, and shelter for birds

Eat, Drink & Be Merry with the TP's Woman's Club!

The Terrace Park Woman's Club will have their first meeting of the year in October at the home of President, Jane Allan. A cooking demonstration will be presented by Gary Bassett, a local chef who grew up in the village. For those of you not familiar with the club, it is a society made up of either current or former residents of Terrace Park who are interested in broadening their intellectual and social vision of the world around us. Each year a new theme or topic is decided on by the program committee. Members take turns presenting a program, organizing a field trip, or inviting a guest speaker to enlighten the group on the topic at hand. Eight meetings are schedule for the year which include six programs. This year the topic is "Eat, Drink, and Be Merry". Several programs for this year, besides the cooking demonstration, include a tour of the Doscher Candy Company located in Newtown and a brewing presentation at the Little Miami Brewing Co. in Milford. A representative from La Soupe will address the group in March.

One of the projects of the Woman's Club is to maintain the website of the Terrace Park Building Survey (tpsurvey.org). It contains a wealth of information about the Village and its history. It includes historical maps of Terrace Park dating back to the early 1800's. There are six different walking tours all mapped out with interesting facts about the homes on the route. We would like to encourage present owners to help us keep the information current and interesting. If you have any historical information to share that is not already included on your property, please contact us. A current picture, outside only, of a newly remodeled or addition would also be appreciated.

If you are interested in learning more about our organization, feel free to call any of our members. I will include my email for your convenience. Steph Jones sbjones@fuse.net

Kiwanis Art Show Raises Scholarship Funds

Submitted by David Peterson

The Kiwanis Club of Mariemont held its 34th Annual Fall Art and Craft Fair Sunday, September 8th under beautiful, sunny skies in the heart of beautiful, downtown Mariemont. This year's event once again featured over 70 exhibitors from across the Tri-State area, including many in our local community showcasing a wide variety of original art, crafts, jewelry, woodworking, glass art and more!

Kiwanis congratulates their 2019 Award Winners: Joanie Weidner with J's CollageScapes (Best In Show - Art), Amy J. Evans with Evan's Art (Runner Up - Art), Roger Little with Scrolling By Design (Best in Show - Craft) and Mary Borovich & Lisa Bachelder with B&B Crafts (Runner Up - Craft). This year's winners were selected by our distinguished judges after an arduous selection from a tremendously talented group of exhibitors!

This year's event once again raised nearly $10,000 for scholarships made available to graduates of the Mariemont School District. Along with their annual spring golf outing, Fairfax Fall Festival and holiday nut sale, this event helps the Mariemont Kiwanis raise nearly $15,000 in total scholarship money each year. Since 2000, the club has awarded over $250,000 in scholar-

Join the Historical Society for Walking Tour of Nature Preserve

The TPHS is proud to have re-actor and local historian Steve Early take us on a guided walk through the Miami Grove Nature Preserve on Saturday, October 12th from 4:00 to 6:00. It will begin in the parking lot off Elm Avenue to the left of Lindell's farm. Have you ever wondered why it's called Miami Grove? Today the quiet trails along the river are beautiful in autumn but there is also a colorful history to this village gem from its heyday as a Victorian summer getaway to its days as a year-round community, and the complicated relationship between "The Grove" and Terrace Park. Everyone is welcome including dogs but they should be under control. The trails can be muddy after rain so wear appropriate shoes or boots. Join us to learn about Miami Grove, walk off some calories, then put them back on at Chilipalozza afterward on the Village Green. No RSVP necessary, see you there!
