Mailbox Vandals Warned

Every year our citizens experience property damage and loss or destruction of mail as a result of mailbox vandalism. For the most part, this vandalism is caused by youths who live in the community where the damage occurs.

Vandalism to a mailbox is a Federal criminal offense which is punishable by a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment of not over three years. In addition, the destruction of property is normally prosecutable as a violation of local law.

But just as important as the criminal violation is the moral wrong of destroying that which belongs to another person. The youth of this community must be made aware that mailbox vandalism is both a criminal violation and a moral wrong.

Postmaster Jim Simonton asks that citizens with knowledge concerning any mailbox vandalism provide that information so that appropriate action can be taken. The postmaster will, when necessary, provide the information to local law enforcement officers and to the Postal Inspection Service.

Hearing Delayed

At its 1979 budget hearing on June 13, Village Council decided to recess for a two week period in order to provide a village resident, Mel Aichholz time to more closely examine village expenditures for 1978.

Aichholz, former village clerk for 10 years, said that he had sought to inspect the budget but it was not posted. He requested that the hearing be postponed until he could go over these figures with the finance chairman and the village clerk.

The meeting will reconvene on June 27 at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Center.

About That Envelope —

Because it is intended to serve all residents of Terrace Park, Village Views is distributed free to every household.

But it does cost money to put it out — approximately $2,400 a year. About half of that sum comes from advertisers. The rest must come from donations from readers.

If you like what we're trying to do, and want it to continue, how about slipping a couple of dollars or so in the envelope stapled to this issue?

Winners in the annual Americanism essay contest, Amy Carden, third grade, Matt Voss, fourth grade, and Darren Burnham, fifth grade, receive their awards from Susan Abernethy at the Memorial Day ceremonies on the village green. Below, Mayor Ray Cadwallader listens as the Rev. George A. Hill, curate of St. Thomas Episcopal Church, delivers the invocation after doing a spell at the drums for the TP band. Railroad Acquisition Takes Step

By Don Franke

State acquisition of the abandoned Penn Central right-of-way has taken a major step forward, but proposals for development of a scenic railway still remain in doubt.

Chris Delaporte, director of the Heritage Conservation and Recreation Service of the U.S. Department of the Interior, has announced approval of a $1,000,000 federal grant to match funds already appropriated by the State of Ohio to acquire the right-of-way which runs from Mariemont some 60 miles northward. This culminates a project of Little Miami Incorporated to obtain funds to protect the right-of-way in a manner compatible with preservation of the Little Miami River in its natural state.

The immediate use of the funds will be for state purchase of the right-of-way. Negotiations with Penn Central have resulted in an agreement under which Penn Central is replacing existing mainline trackage with lighter gauge tracks. Sale of the heavy tracks is expected to decrease the cost to the state.

Use of the right-of-way will be determined after careful planning and consultation with all communities, other units of government, and citizens along the tracks.

Delaporte, speaking at the IMI annual dinner on June 9, emphasized that his agencies insist that planning be compatible with preservation of the river for quiet recreational and scenic purposes.

Interest in a small scale scenic passenger train service at the moment seems to be greatest in the Morrow area.

Once the state acquires the right-of-way, local problems can better be dealt with, such as the best solution to the deteriorating bridge over the tracks at Elm Road.

The right-of-way will be managed by Ohio's Department of Natural Resources.

First Aid Car Gets Council OK

By Beth Kauffman

At its June meeting, Council approved expenditure of up to $7,000 for the purchase of a new ambulance for the Life Squad. Fire Chief Pierce Matthews reported that the total cost of the new vehicle will be $23,140 of which the Fire Association has raised $17,075.

The present ambulance is the third which the volunteer fire department purchased through its own fund-raising efforts. Strict new federal and state regulations governing size and equipment have combined with inflationary pressures to push costs up sharply.

In other business, Council authorized the Village clerk to advertise for bids to resurface approximately 20,000 square yards of streets in the village. Sections of Stanton Avenue, Franklin Avenue and Indian Hill Road have been designated.

Street Commissioner Pat Henley requested that village residents whose property lines are adjacent to an alley be advised that the village will do a thorough job of pruning in July. Residents should be given the first opportunity to do their own pruning of shrubs and hedges. Alleys must have a 13-foot minimum access. Henley also advised that should a resident replace or repair a driveway at the street, a building permit would be required.

Council acted to permit the village to vacate the last 100 feet of Oxford Avenue, originally a public landing which was destroyed by a flood. The clerk was authorized to call a public hearing on July 20.

Council also was advised that bids for repair of the Route 50 bridge between Milford and Terrace Park will be opened August 22.

TP Voters Join That 'Revolution'

Terrace Park voters in the June primary joined the rest of the county in soundly rejecting a $95 million county jail-criminal justice building bond issue.

The local vote was 145 for and 215 against. By precincts the tally was: Precinct A, 44 yes, 78 no; B, 45-73; C, 56-65.

In other contests, state leadership got support in both parties.

It was Rhodes over Kurfess 210 to 91 for Republican nomination for governor, and Celeste 192 over Reush 27 on the Democratic ticket.

Editorially Speaking

By David Pannkuk

Well sir, Miss Bflstk, it boggles the mind! And, mind-boggling news seems to occur with greater frequency these days. I am speaking of the fact that the village of Terrace Park couldn't take advantage of the revenue-sharing funds allocated by the feds. Notice the dichotomy. Used to be "Our Government." Now, it's the feds. I wonder if Congress is aware of this?

According to the guidelines, our village doesn't have enough, if any, poor people in the percentage required. Now, I wouldn't suggest, as did one Texas community, that we advertise for "poor" people to come stay with us in order to qualify for our share of the revenues. No, I think the Texas idea lacks class. What I propose is that some families be designated by the Village Council as being poor for the calendar or fiscal year in question. We could even start with the "P's."

What these heads of households would do would be to place all their income for the year into an escrow account to be held by the Village. You see, don't you, that as long as the income is not declared, the "poor" families would be living on charity or welfare. At the end of the year, the Village would apply for their share of the revenues and this time they would receive it because they had satisfied the guidelines for having enough "poor" people.

Then the Village could do all the neat things required for "aiding the poor." Like repairing all the potholes in the streets, purchasing the new ambulance, setting up recreation areas.

If we don't do something on this order, that revenue of ours will be shared among those really poor states, e.g. Texas, California, and Arizona.

The choices and options are getting smaller and narrower aren't they, Miss Bflstk, sir? And just as the saying goes — "Beware the fury of the patient man!"

On Summer Plan

St. Thomas Episcopal Church is on summer schedule now, with Sunday services at 8 and 10 a.m. and a Bible study class at 9.

Monday evening healing services directed by the Rev. Emily Gardiner Neal will be discontinued through July and August.

By Bill Weakley

"What's the sco?" "Foty-fo to fo, favir uv lo-mo." I was reminded of that old tag recently as the Terrace Park "All-Star" T-Ball team (and they are ALL stars) defeated the notorious Madeira Marauders at the T.P. grade school diamond.

The stellar performance by our local six, seven and even a few five-year olds was something to behold. Even Cincinnati's "Charlie Hustle," Pete Rose, had nothing on these future greats when it came to enthusiasm, spirit and just plain poise.

'Twas a sight to behold, marred only by a few overzealous parents who forgot that the main reason for teams such as this is to help the Kids learn team-work and that it IS how you play the game that counts. (Mom, it really is O.K. for junior to throw the bat once and be called out. You see, he's learning some of life's little lessons and will hopefully be a better man for the experience.)

If you've never had the opportunity to see these kids in action (girls and boys together on the same team if you can believe it!) do yourself a favor and catch an inning or two at your next free Saturday, or give a look at a practice of a Tuesday or Thursday evening. The game will be a rewarding one I guarantee. The coaches who give their time and energy deserve congrats and admiration for their interest and patience. We salute you.

The score, you ask? The final tally was T.P. 29-M.M. 25, and my boy got two runs, three hits and a couple of put-outs, but who was counting anyway?

FIRST IN 1788

The first settlement in the Terrace Park area was a log fort with four blockhouses and 17 cabins, built in the area where St. Thomas Church now stands. It was erected by a band of 45 men, women and children led by Abraham Covalt, a Revolutionary War captain. The band left Pittsburgh on home-made flatboats on January 1, 1788, reached the mouth of the Little Miami January 19, and camped there while temporary log structures were built here.

Gerhard Named

The Rev. Robert D. Gerhard, rector of St. Thomas Church, has been elected president of the United Cerebral Palsy of Cincinnati. Mr. Gerhard has been a trustee of the unit since 1975.

George Hill Ordained To Priesthood

The Rev. George A. Hill III is joined by his parents, both United Methodist Church ministers, at a reception following his ordination as a priest at St. Thomas Episcopal Church.

It was a family affair joined by a large number of parishioners when the Rev. George A. Hill III was ordained as a priest of the Episcopal Church at ceremonies at St. Thomas Church June 12.

Among the clergy participating were his parents, the Rev. George A. Hill, Jr. and the Rev. Marguerite A. Hill, both ministers in the United Methodist Church. His wife, Amy, was the soloist and her sisters, Lucy and Susie Edgeworth, were oblation bearers.

Mr. Hill joined the staff of St. Thomas as curate last September and was ordained a deacon in the church in March. He previously had served as minister to two United Methodist congregations in Indiana after studying music and religion at Indiana University and earning his MA at Methodist Theological School.

The Rt. Rev. John M. Krumm, bishop of the Diocese of Southern Ohio, performed the ordination. The Rev. Robert D. Gerhard, rector of St. Thomas, was master of ceremonies. Other participants were the Rev. Emily Gardiner Neal, the Rev. James J. Harkins, the Very Rev. Richard H. Mansfield Jr., the Rev. John C. Beatty, the Rev. Jonathon Raff, the Rev. Hugh C. Laughlin, Richard Mileham, Mrs. Karen Kendall, Dr. Harry Maxon, and Mrs. Mary Coryell. Guest organist was Frank Jordan of Oxford, Ohio.

Two Terrace Parkers Ordained As Deacons

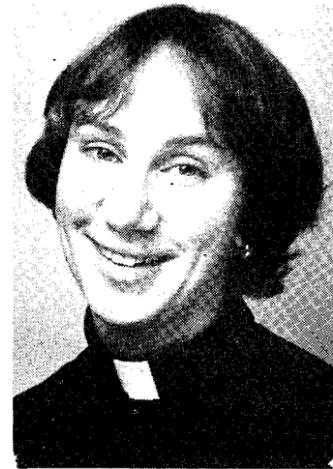

Two Terrace Park natives — Noel Stephens Julnes and Burt Harvey Froelich — were ordained deacons in ceremonies at St. Thomas Episcopal Church on May 27. The services marked the first time two Terrace Park people have been ordained at the same time, and the first ordination of a Terrace Park woman.

The Rt. Rev. John M. Krumm, bishop of the Diocese of Southern Ohio, performed the rite of ordination.

The Rev. Robert D. Gerhard, rector of St. Thomas, presided as Master of Ceremonies and the Rev. Frederick P. LaCrone, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church and former curate here, delivered the sermon in which he stressed the duty of a deacon in service to others, especially lending help to the poor, lonely and the sick.

The Rev. Ms. Julnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norval Julnes, attended Mariemont schools, and Hanover College, and was graduated from Eckard College at St. Petersburg, Florida. She attended Virginia Theological Seminary and was graduated from the Divinity School of the Pacific at Berkeley. She recently completed one year of internship at The Bishop's School of LaJolla, California.

The Rev. Mr. Froelich, son of Mr. and Mrs. F.L. (Bud) Froelich, attended Mariemont schools, received his B.S. at Morehead State University, worked one year counseling at the Cave Run Clinic; then entered Virginia Theological Seminary on scholarship from the Southern Ohio Diocese. He served St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Greenville, Ohio, for three months and is presently Director of Christian Education at St. James' Episcopal Church, Potomac, Maryland. He is married to the former Denise Huddleston of Frankfort, Kentucky.

Palmer Ellsworth Faces New Challenge

By Zoe Moore

Palmer Ellsworth is definitely a Terrace Park dynamo. Just having finished successful chairmanship of the Cincinnati Junior League Decorators' Showhouse, she is ready to tackle the chairmanship of the Labor Day Festival for the Terrace Park Recreation Commission.

Palmer and husband Don have been Terrace Park residents for 2½ years, living at 435 Elm. While Palmer is a Georgia native and Don is from Boston, most recently they lived in Charleston, W. Va. for 6½ years and, prior to that, in Cleveland for 5½ years. Sons Donald, 12; Will, 11; and daughter Campbell, 7, complete the family.

With a fabulous background in fund-raising, Palmer is excited about this year's festival. Even before the Cincinnati Showhouse, she chaired the Junior League fund-raiser in Charleston and also had the distinction of being the first woman chosen by the Chamber of Commerce there for "Leadership Charleston," a select group of community leaders.

Another success was chairing an innovative county-wide residential drive for the United Way in Charleston.

Concerning the T.P. Festival, Palmer says, "It is a good feeling to do something in which the foundation has been built — something the kids look forward to every year. Both children and parents have a sense of knowing they will get something back from the money that is spent. Really, this festival is to provide the operational funds for one year for the Recreation Commission — the equipment and team fees as well as various other expenses. And this year the Festival is even more important since the purchase of the additional acreage near the swim club."

Palmer sees the raffle tickets (for cash prizes) as the key to making more money. Even though they are always well-received, she is aiming for 100% support from all houses with children. And even if people can't be here for the festival, the raffle tickets are a perfect way to lend support to the endeavor. Of course the volunteer hours of the adults are a main ingredient of the festival and they are greatly appreciated. It is these returning adults with their annual support that have given the festival such a firm foundation of success.

Now with plans for the Festival under way, it is time for all of us to give Palmer a call and volunteer our efforts.

'Old World' Comes To Terrace Market

By Jeanne Sanker

A touch of Old World charm has been added to the Terrace Park Market with the arrival of its new owners, Gerda and Jerry Braunheim, originally from Germany. But it's still much as when Carol and Lou Fahrnbach, Mark and Wendy, were there: the friendly atmosphere, the enthusiastic interest in community, the eagerness to serve.

As with the Fahrnbachs who, incidentally, have hopes of relocating soon in the Tidewater area of Virginia, the Market will remain "a family affair," and the three Braunheim children will soon be working there daily. Vickie, 19, a student in business administration at the University of Cincinnati, is recovering from a very serious auto accident suffered over two months ago; David, 16, a junior at the Cincinnati Christian High School in Fairfield, is an avid soccer and basketball player; and Jimmie, 11, a sixth-grader in the middle school section of the same school, is also very interested in playing soccer and baseball.

The Braunheims still adhere to some Old World values regarding child rearing, including the appreciation and teaching of the wise use of time and money, respect for work, and consideration of family members and all others they meet. They hope that working in the Market will enhance their children's training in these qualities. It was one reason for their purchase of the Market.

Gerda's and Jerry's "success story" in America is a result of their constant faith, unlimited ambition, and unending hard work and it helps to ease memories of many difficult and unhappy times in former days. They were happy to have the opportunity to come to America and though they both came here in 1956 from Germany, they did not meet until a year later at a German social event at the old Alms Hotel.

Gerda's family in East Germany had lost everything

Gerda and Jerry Braunheim

during World War II and afterward had lived for 1½ years in a refugee camp in Denmark. They were finally able to resettle in Cochem which is along the Moselle River.

Long before the term "women's lib" was popular, Gerda had bravely entered the predominantly male trade of butchering. "It was not through choice," she recalls, "but through necessity." She first served as an apprentice and then worked as a butcher for eight years, little dreaming then that one day it would prove to be an important part of her family's own business in far-away America.

Under the sponsorship of an aunt in Cincinnati, Gerda arrived here in December, 1956, unable to speak English but eager to learn everything needed to know in order to live comfortably in her new land. She attended English classes at Hughes High School and later the University of Cincinnati. For a number of years after she was married, she was a successful real estate agent with the Theodore Mayer Company, all the while managing her home and the care of their three small children.

Jerry had met an official of the Timken Roller Bearing Company in Germany and accepted his offer to come to work in Cincinnati. With a degree in mechanical engineering, he was employed first as a draftsman. After attending night classes at the University of Cincinnati for eight years, he received his degree in corporate management. He is now employed at the Pedco Corporation as a project manager. He joins the family in working at the Market on Saturdays.

Although the Braunheims are unusually busy with Jerry's work, family and school routine, and their business, they still find time to devote to their church and "to smell the flowers along the way." Their home in Miami Township is on a fifteen-acre tract of land which they share with five other families. First among Gerda's garden delights are her 50 dahlia bushes with flowers of 13½" diameter. A real dahlia enthusiast, she formerly had 100 bushes but finds now that 50, along with some tomato plants, are all she has time to care for properly.
