

Keeping Up Tradition

New councilman Dan Startzman Jr. is congratulated by Mayor Jack Schmidt after taking the oath of office. Both his father and grandfather served as village councilmen.

Playground Equipment Reared

Willing workers swarmed around as new playground equipment was put in place on the grounds of Terrace Park elementary school September 9-10. The new equipment, costing more than $10,000, was sponsored by the Terrace Park PTA and financed by donations and sale of a newly-designed Terrace Park flag. School publicity credited the Albrechts, the Dracketts, the Kefferes and the Rixeyes with leadership in the project.

In Their Son's Memory

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Ward came up from Sun City Center, Florida, for the celebration of virtual completion of the new pavilion on the village green, financed by friends of their late son, Dick. Mayor Jack Schmidt paid tribute to the organizers of the effort at the annual Labor Day festivities when the pavilion had its first public use.

Recycling Glut Brings Halt To Boy Scout Paper Drives

There will be no more Boy Scout paper drives in Terrace Park, at least for the foreseeable future.

Gerry Malotke, assistant scoutmaster of Troop 286, told village council at its September meeting that recycling efforts have swamped the market, and the troop was told that it would neither be paid for any paper nor provided shipping facilities.

In the past, the troop has received up to $35 a ton for the paper. The last collection was expected to yield little more than $7 a ton.

The drives have served the village and financed Scouting here for over 40 years, in recent years collecting an average of 64 tons of old newspaper a year.

Newspapers have been the major part of recycling so far in Terrace Park, according to a survey presented to council by Julie Rugh.

The survey, distributed with last month's Village Views, drew a remarkable 34% return rate, and indicated that villagers are taking recycling seriously, prefer curbside pickup, and are willing to pay a bit more for it.

With grass clippings banned, by state action, from garbage collections next year, Acting Police Chief Bob Bacon reported at the meeting also that a three-week check shows that an average of 123 residents put clippings out for pickup. He said for the village to assume the task would call for another employee and an additional truck for a total cost of $59,400 over a five-year period. He noted, however, that both would be used in many other village maintenance programs.

Of the 277 responses reported in the recycling survey, 154 said they were already recycling, although 149 were turning in papers, and 104 aluminum cans.

Of those not recycling, most called it inconvenient to take material to an outside recycling center, even if they knew where to go. Nearly all, 265 of the 277, said they would separate paper, aluminum, plastic, etc., for curbside pickup by the garbage contractor, and 160, or 74%, said they would pay some additional cost.

However, 204 said they would take recyclable materials to a convenient Terrace Park drop-in center, 121 suggesting Saturday opening, 93 supporting anytime, and 29 once-a-month. A hundred said they would put out material for collection by a local group.

Over half, 52%, said grass clippings should be left on the lawns. The others urged village collection.

Dan Startzman to Council

Keeping up a family tradition, Dan Startzman, Jr., has joined Terrace Park's village council to fill out the remaining months of the term of Tim Gleeson, and will run for election to a full term in November.

A native of Terrace Park whose father and grandfather also served on council, he was the choice of a councilman selection committee to succeed Gleeson, who resigned because of his marriage and removal from the village. Startzman was sworn in at a special meeting on August 28.

The action brings to five the number of persons who will be seeking to fill the four places on council to be voted on in November. The others, who had previously declared their candidacies, are incumbents Randy Casteel, 819 Wooster Pike, and Rusty Wilson, 309 Stanton Ave., and newcomers Dom Costanzo, 736 Wooster Pike, and John Prues, 726 Yale.

Margot Grund, 307 Wanoka Woods, will also be on the ballot, running unopposed for a full term as village treasurer, a post to which she was appointed following the resignation of Dianne Greer.

Connie Wilson, 309 Stanton Ave., chief of the village Life Squad, is one of three members running unopposed for re-election to the Mariemont school board of which she currently is president.

Up for a vote also will be two-year renewal of a 3.11 village operating levy.

School Visitors

Need Badges

Approval of 1989-90 elementary and high school student handbooks by the Mariemont Board of Education at its August 15 meeting initiated new procedures for visiting the district's buildings. Visitors must sign in at the office and receive a badge to be worn while in the school building. Terrace Park Principal Michelle Hummell said badges would not be necessary for group functions.

The board also employed Linda Yokel of Terrace Park as a part-time art instructor at Terrace Park Elementary.

A graduate of Mariemont High School and, like father and grandfather a graduate of Washington & Lee University, Startzman earned a law degree from the University of Cincinnati, and has been active in both the Cincinnati and Ohio Bar Associations. Vice president of the Cincinnati Rotary Club and president of the Rotary Foundation, he was recently named a trustee of Camp Stepping Stones.

In Terrace Park he coaches baseball and soccer for the Recreation Committee.

He and his wife Kathy and their two sons live in what was his grandparent's house at 223 Rugby Ave.

Labor Day Festival Sets Some Records

Terrace Park's "trash" provided real treasures for the Recreation Commission's Labor Day Festival. Chairman Rusty Wilson congratulated Garage Sale chairman Sue Porter for record sales of more than $4,600, which was half of the festival's $9,446 net income.

Wilson said this year's festival broke more records, netting $2,618 more than the record-breaking festival of 1987. Residents spent $15,351 this year, which is $4,975 more than last year's gross income of $10,376. This year's net is up $4,087 over last year's net of $5,360.

Recreation Commission president John Jones commended Wilson and his assistant, Gregg MacMillan, for their efforts. The Labor Day Festival provides the funds to maintain Drackett Field, run Summer Fun and sponsor the village's baseball, basketball, soccer and softball programs.

Leaf Pick-up Set

Leaf pick-up this fall will begin on October 15, and is scheduled to end November 22, according to Acting Police Chief Bob Bacon, who also is village street commissioner.

He cautioned that no branches or other debris should be thrown onto leaf piles. Such material, he said, slows the pick-up and has caused damage to the leaf-handling machinery.

'He Wasn't Fired'—Schmidt

Mayor Jack Schmidt read this statement to village council at its September meeting:

In the past few weeks, I have heard a wide variety of unfortunate rumors surrounding the resignation of Ron Pottorf as police chief. While the specifics vary widely, the common element was that Ron Pottorf was in some way fired.

While some form of speculation around the resignation of any official might be human nature, let me restate very clearly one last time that he was not fired. Chief Pottorf reached a point where he no longer wanted to be involved in law enforcement. Anyone who has put in 20 years or more in a demanding field has probably had similar thoughts about their own careers.

When Chief Pottorf advised me that he was going to resign, I tried to talk him out of it and offered him time to think over his decision. It was only with great reluctance and regret that I finally accepted his letter of resignation.

Hopefully, this issue is now closed and we can turn our attention to running our village government.

Church Bazaar Shifts Into High Gear

Work for the St. Thomas Bazaar is swinging into high gear. Workshops start Friday, September 15, and will continue every Friday from 9-12 at the church with babysitting provided. The workshops are open not only to St. Thomas members, but to anyone interested in coffee, conversation, and good companionship.

For those who prefer to work at home, craft kits (needlepoint, sewing, rag baskets, etc.) will be available September 17. Contact Betsy Ecker (248-1813) for information.

Bazaar workers are looking for donations. Especially appreciated will be small items of value no longer in use in the home for the popular Grandma's Parlor, and furniture, not in need of repair.

The bazaar will be held this year on a Friday instead of the traditional Thursday date. Preview night, open to everyone in the community, will be held the night before the bazaar November 17 date.

While the bazaar promotes fellowship among the women of the church, another strong purpose is to give financial support to many worthwhile activities and organizations. The list is long, but among those receiving support are: Alcoholic Drop-In Center, Cincinnati Rape Crisis Center, Contact, Alice Paul House for Battered Women, Friends of the Groom, and Mountain T.O.P. - St. Thomas Youth.

Nan Cowan and neighbor Jeff Willis designed and made the Village Green Pavilion ornaments to be sold as a limited edition at the St. Thomas Bazaar Friday, November 17.

Drought Plagues Street Tree Plantings

Last summer's drought is expected to result in more tree losses in Terrace Park next year, Councilman Randy Casteel reported at September's council meeting.

He listed 35 trees as needing removal late this year, and 30 others needing corrective work.

After a survey, he said, he and Steve Sandfort, village tree consultant, saw signs of future troubles and agreed on an expanded replanting program. Casteel said he was planning the planting of 100 new trees this fall and 82 more next spring.

The long-standing Denison Lane sidewalk controversy moved back to square one meantime as Casteel reported the existing asphalt curb was disintegrating because of shoddy workmanship and should be removed.

Acting Police Chief Bob Bacon reported that a check over several school days showed an average of only six children using the street, with four of them riding bicycles in the roadway, and no vehicular traffic.

In other actions, council:

- * Passed an ordinance setting up permit procedures for encroachment on public streets. The specific issue involves placement of the septic tank for a house to be built on Miami Avenue.

- * Heard from Lt. Bacon that the sidewalk program has been completed at a 40% savings, and that county engineers had ruled the Elm Avenue bridge to be safe despite a sidewalk crack caused by settling.

- * Heard from Lt. Bacon that a pond off Given Road had been treated for mosquito control,

- * Confirmed appointment of three new auxiliary policemen, two of them women, and all from the Xavier University security department. They are Brenda Gossett, 22, of Milford; Pamela Dale, 23, of Blue Ash, and William Smoth, 22, of Price Hill. All are graduates of the Police Academy and licensed police officers.

- * Authorized a $5,000 expenditure to upgrade the older village fire truck which failed recently to pass a pumping test required after 10 years of service.

- * Heard from building official Tim Harth that he had issued 15 permits for work worth $269,000 during the month.

- * Heard from Fire Chief Pierce Matthews of three fire runs in the past month, and from Life Squad Chief Connie Wilson of nine squad runs.

- * Heard a resident's complaint of speeding in the 100 block of Miami Avenue, with a suggestion for a stop sign at Cambridge Avenue.

Friendship Bible Studies Planned

A series of Friendship Bible Studies is being organized for this fall by Julie Rugh, Dru Stockwell and Bunny Proctor. Groups will meet in Terrace Park homes for informal discussions rather than formal teaching or lectures. Courses will run from five to 14 weeks, and are open to everyone.

Those interested should call Julie at 248-1091, Dru at 831-7642, or Bunny at 831-3421.

To the Editor

I would like to thank the staff and volunteers of Village Views for their willingness to include the recycling survey in last month's publication. While helping to staple the papers together, I realized what a big job it is.

I would like to thank Village Council for its willingness to address this issue seriously and responsibly.

And finally, I would like to thank Terrace Park residents for responding to the survey. By September 8, we had over 30% of the surveys returned. I'm told that is a terrific response as surveys go. I know many of you would still like to send in your comments, and the Recycling Committee will be reviewing every survey sent in. You can pick up a survey at the Post Office, the village office, or call me at 248-1091.

Day Is Changed For Pumpkin Festival

Ghosts, goblins and ghouls are visiting Terrace Park Elementary School on a new day this year. PTA ways and means chairmen Linda Wenstrup and Sue Keffer announced the annual Pumpkin Festival will move from the traditional Wednesday night to Friday, October 20, from 5:30 until 8 p.m. in the school gym.

The Pumpkin Festival is the principle fund raiser for the PTA's annual projects.

Donna Taylor and Grace Holmes will preside over this year's Pumpkin Patch which will offer goods and services for sale. Christy and Fred Albrecht have opened the donations with a huge stocking filled with toys and games, and Georgie Howe is quilting a wall hanging featuring Terrace Park's school and trees. Donations will be accepted until Wednesday, October 11.

Diane Klekamp heads the food committee which offers a varied menu. Tucky Harrison will organize the home baked goods sale, while Stephanie Jones will sell real pumpkins outside the gym door.

Nancy Seward and Debbie Oliver will organize the games while Marsha Moyer will serve as treasurer. Cathy DeDiemar will decorate the school, and Becky Casteel's committee will handle the clean-up duties.

The main attraction, the Haunted House, will be set up by John Wenstrup, Dave Park, and Gene Taylor.

Water Rates To Go Up

Indian Hill's village council is expected to pass at its September 25 meeting an ordinance providing for an increase in water rates beginning next month. The water system serves Terrace Park.

The ordinance was given first reading at a meeting August 28 after council received an engineering report on $3.4 million in water works improvements. It calls for an immediate increase of approximately 8%, a similar increase in October of 1990, and 3% in October of 1992.

Work on drilling two new wells and laying additional transmission lines is expected to be completed in the summer of 1990. Enlarging the water works plant to provide added treatment facilities is scheduled for completion by spring of 1991.

Church Housing Project Under Way

Long and complex financing negotiations completed, work has begun on Thomaston Woods, the Clermont County low-cost housing project proposed and sponsored by St. Thomas Church. A formal ground-breaking is planned for October 4.

The site is 12.5 acres on Amelia-Olive Branch Road. Plans call for erection of 16 buildings containing 100 townhouse--upstairs and downstairs--apartments for low and moderate-income families, and an administrative and community center. The $4.8 million project is expected to take from 12 to 14 months to complete.

Senior Warden Carol Peterson said the breakthrough on major financing came in recent weeks when Bank One agreed to join Central Trust, the Provident Bank, and Western-Southern Life Insurance

Co. as limited partners in the enterprise. Other financing involves loans and grants from the Ohio Financing Agency, and $1.3 million from the Episcopal Diocese of Southern Ohio, with mortgage insurance from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. Rents will be subsidized by the Clermont County housing authority.

No St. Thomas Church funds are involved other than $27,000 in seed money to get the project planning under way.

Church interest was stimulated by a Clermont County study early in 1988 which showed urgent need for over 800 housing units. The St. Thomas Housing Corporation was then formed under the leadership of Jud Gale and Chris Smith to develop the project. Gale said some 60 parishioners had joined in bringing the plans to fruition.

While the Housing Corporation headed by Gale is dealing with financing and construction, another group, a subsidiary Operating Board headed by Beth Kauffman has been preparing for functioning of the development once it is completed.

Mrs. Kauffman said that professional management will be installed. In the meantime, the Operating Board is preparing operating guidelines.

Pierson Davis has prepared a preliminary budget, and a committee led by Margot Grund has readied recommendations covering tenant screening and tenant rules.

Other committee chairmen are Dick Palmer, capital improvements; Karen Long, outreach; and Peg Pettit, tenant and community relations.

Killer Caught Here Among Four Held on Drugs, Weapons Charges

A man only recently released from a Florida prison after serving time for murder was among four persons seized by Terrace Park police late on Labor Day.

Charges ranged from possession of drugs and weapons to a traffic citation, all resulting from stopping a speeding car on Wooster Pike.

Acting Police Chief Bob Bacon said the guns brought to three the weapons seized by village officers during the week. Two other arrests earlier unearthed traffic in forged driver's licenses:

Bacon identified one of the four, members of a motorcycle gang, as Charles Peacock, 32, of Bradenton, Florida. He said investigation disclosed that the man had been imprisoned for eight years on a murder charge, but was permitted to plead to a lesser killing charge and released because of time served when questions were raised concerning his prior conviction.

The others were identified as Michelle Agostino, 38, and William R. Jent, 38, both of Bradenton, and Bryan L. Coberly, 27, of Dayton, Ohio. Peacock, Agostino and Coberly were jailed pending arraignment on drug and weapons charges. Jent was cited for speeding, but his car is subject to confiscation because of the drugs found in it.

Patrolman Dennis Wells and Jim Beckett, an auxiliary patrolman, stopped the car and, becoming suspicious, called for backup from other officers. Two handguns and small quantities of cocaine and marijuana were found in the car, but the suspects offered no resistance.

Two Chosen As National Merit Semifinalists

Jennifer Woods and Brent Ballard of Terrace Park High School were among three Mariemont High School seniors who have been named as semifinalists in the 1990 National Merit Scholar competition.

A school announcement said they were among some 15,000 chosen as semifinalists from among more than a million students nationwide who entered the competition as juniors. They were picked because of "exceptional potential for scholarly contributions and leadership."

Topping The Pavilion

Crafted by Stan Thomson, the weathervane atop the new pavilion represents Terrace Park, picturing as it does a maple tree, the Elm Avenue underpass with the railroad tracks on top, an evergreen, an elm, and an oak.

Life Squad Awarded New Training Manikins

Terrace Park's Emergency Medical Service training program was greatly enhanced when the National Automobile Dealer's Charitable Foundation and Tom Kneer Chrysler-Plymouth presented Resuci-Anne and Resuci-Baby training manikins to the organization on September 11.

Essential for CPR training, the two new manikins signal when the trainee is applying correct pressure in the right position and proper airway is being maintained.

Jim Wilson represented Tom Kneer Chrysler-Plymouth, who sponsored the Terrace Park Life Squad for this grant. Mark McCarthy represented the Ohio New Car and Truck Dealers Assn. The manikins were presented to Connie Wilson, chief, and Sally Gilchrist, assistant chief and training officer.

Scores In Swim Championships

As a member of an Ohio all-star team, Kathy Lowry of Terrace Park participated in long course Central Zone swimming championships in Iowa City in mid-August, competing against entries from five other states.

She placed sixth in the 50-meter freestyle, and eighth in the 50-meter butterfly, and was a member of the third place 11-12 girls 200 meter free relay team.

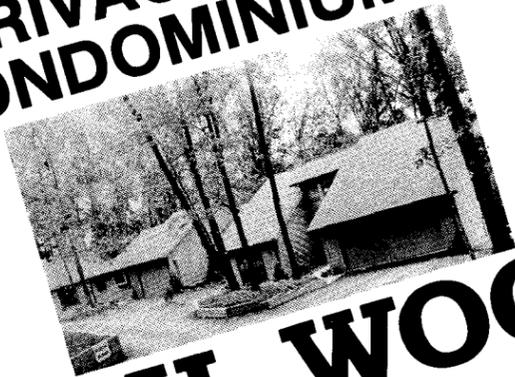

A Country Day School honor student who swims for the Cincinnati Aquatic Club, she lives at 303 Marietta Ave.

Water Is Safe

The Ohio Department of Health has completed tests which indicate that the drinking water in the Mariemont district schools is safe. This is in response to the Lead Contamination Control Act of 1988 which requires that local educational agencies test for and remedy lead contamination in drinking water from water coolers and other sources of lead.
